I will prise you Lord

In the assembly of your people.

Psalm 21, is full of joyful praise and thanksgiving for the victory that grants to his people. Also called a Royal Psalm as it sings of the help and blessing the King receives from God.

This act of worship in song recalls the many favours that God bestows on the King. The splendour and glory of the Royal pomp is a reflection of the power and glory that belongs to God.

As the Psalmist offers thanks for his own deliverance he extends the circle of gratitude and blessing to all. The poor of the earth, the families of nations, the mighty of the earth and future generations in the chorus of praise. It is fitting as Easter people that we join in the song of praise.
